

Plus v q Ir vsh

Mathematics aims to study the quantitative relationships and geometrics of natural and social phenomena in a very broad scope. Students will learn to analyze different phenomena in mathematics and to form mathematical models to predict different outcomes in different scenarios. You will also and interact with specialists in the field who have experience in research and will consequently enable you achieve your goal.